No One Left Behind Announces Partnership with Unite Us, Supporting Newly Arriving Afghan SIVs and Their Families

No One Left Behind (NOLB) and Unite Us, the nation’s leading technology company connecting health and social care services, are partnering to address the unmet needs of U.S. interpreters and employees that supported the United States during conflicts in the Middle East. This national partnership will connect displaced U.S. translators and workers to needed resources when they arrive in the United States, and provide them with access to programs that will enable them to contribute meaningfully to society as new Americans and live healthy lives.

No One Left Behind is a leading national organization dedicated to ensuring that America keeps its promise to U.S. interpreters and employees in Iraq and Afghanistan through the Special Immigrant Visa (SIV) program. Founded in 2014, NOLB is the oldest charitable organization focusing specifically on supporting former translators and U.S. government employees eligible for the Iraq and Afghanistan SIV program.

Unite Us connects people to much-needed social services such as assistance with housing, food insecurity, employment, and financial literacy. Through Unite Us, community-based organizations, local government agencies and healthcare partners can identify the needs of individuals and collaborate together through a secure, closed-loop coordinated care network.

Philip Caruso, Chair of the Board of Directors for No One Left Behind, acknowledges the importance of addressing social care for allies and immigrants to improve their overall well-being as they adapt to living in the United States.

“With so many Special Immigration Visa holders (SIVs) facing challenges and in need of basic support upon arrival, it’s imperative to provide wider access to essential services,” said Caruso. “Getting people back up on their feet as soon as possible ensures a level of basic human dignity — this partnership helps us expand our reach and provide aid more broadly to our allies,” he added.

Local interpreters and employees working for the U.S. government in Iraq and Afghanistan put their lives on the line for Americans serving overseas and back home.

“During my time as a platoon leader in Iraq, I served alongside brave translators who risked their lives to support the United States. As a country, we owe it to eligible Afghans and Iraqis to support their resettlement,” said Adrienne Sherk, Senior Director, Community-Based Organization Partnerships, Unite Us. “Together, Unite Us and NOLB are committed to ensuring that SIV recipients and their families have equitable access to the care they need to thrive in America. Our collective goal is to increase opportunities to live stable and healthy lives, no matter who you are or where you were born. This partnership is a natural fit that aligns with Unite Us’ core value to “Be a Good Human,” especially for SIV Afghan and Iraqi families who arrive here with very little guidance. A little support and assistance can go a long way,” she added.

“As a veteran-founded company, we understand how important it is for SIVs to be connected to health and social care services, the minute they arrive in the United States. Community-based organizations such as No One Left Behind, create lasting impact on the lives of the people they serve, and we’re honored to work alongside them and support their mission,” said Dan Brillman, Unite Us Co-Founder and CEO. “Collaborations like these strengthen communities by providing equitable access to critical resources for the brave people who risked it all to serve our country,” he added.
